

LEADING INCLUSIVE TEAMS NAMIC'S NEW PROGRAM

Good companies rely on teams representing a diversity of thought, perspectives and backgrounds. Simple, surface-level diversity doesn't guarantee high performance. High performance and results require inclusive leadership — leadership that respects, values and includes a seat for everyone at the table.

Leading Inclusive Teams will help leaders develop and refine the skills necessary to build inclusive teams. The course, designed like a learning laboratory, engages like-minded leaders in interactive dialogue and activities. Participants will walk away understanding the impact of diversity and inclusion on a company's market position, brand narrative and workforce. They will also learn strategies to build trust, improve listening skills, incorporate best practices, and advance diversity, equity and inclusion in their companies.

Who should attend:

This program is exclusively tailored for mid-career professionals in the media, entertainment, and technology industries who have completed the NAMIC's Leadership Seminar Program.

- Mid-level executives with at least 7 – 10 years of leadership experience
- High-potential leaders on the fast track to take on significant managerial responsibility
- Motivated leaders who want to advance diversity and inclusion in their companies
